

Written by Riley M (Merridale)

CHAPTER 2

(winning entry)

It was the weekend so Charlie wanted to stay at his nan's house which he could because his mum let him. Later on that night, Charlie tried to fall asleep and just as he was about to, the ping of his phone woke him up. He had another message saying, "What's the matter loser? You scared?" Charlie replied with, 'What do you mean?' He got no reply after waiting half an hour, so he drifted off to sleep.

"What's the matter Charlie- you don't look too good?" asked Charlie's nan the next morning (with a confused tone). "Oh it's nothing - I just had a bad dream - don't worry," Charlie replied whilst pouring the cereal into a bowl. Charlie's stomach felt in knots.

Determined not to let it ruin his weekend, Charlie went out for a bike ride in the park. Once he got to the park, Charlie saw Kamil, Arif and David. They were at the skate and tricks part of the park. He went over to see them doing tricks and Charlie wanted to join in so they told him to do a trick. "Charlie do a trick" said Arif.

"Ok" replied Charlie. Everyone took out their phones and started recording. His turn didn't go so well (he fell off the side of the ramp) and everyone laughed. Charlie had enough so he went home and he had a notification on his phone. He clicked it and it was a video of him falling in the park. He didn't know who had posted it but he knew it was one of his 'friends'. Charlie felt like he had been betrayed. He was that embarrassed that he didn't want to go to school on Monday even though he loved school.

It came up to supper time and Charlie tried to forget about the incident that had happened earlier. He had his supper and went up to his room to chill out. In a flash, Charlie received another message but didn't check it for a while. "I was trying to make you a friend again but after what happened today, it makes you more of a loser haha!" the text said. Charlie was shocked to see this - he knew it was one of his friends now and he couldn't do anything. Now he felt defenceless...

2RT

1 sticker

✓ Well done Riley! You have followed the instructions for the task carefully which has resulted in a great piece of writing!